Strike Power Plant

Terrorist Incidents In South

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes and bombarding naval vessels delivered a coordinated knockout blow to the big power plant just outside the major North Vietnamese city of Vinh, the U.S. Command said today.

It was the first combined Air-Navy strike at a major North Vietnamese target.

A rash of terrorist incidents were reported in South Vietnam, including Communist efforts to stop traffic on the major Mekong Delta highway and a guerrilla raid on a small hamlet where five men and a woman were shot down as "police spies."

While no major ground battles were reported, there were sharp fights up and down South Vietnam, with 49 Viet Cong killed in one series of running fights in the northernmost 1st Corps area where most recent ground fighting has centered.

The Vinh power plant was attacked Monday. The heavy cruiser St. Paul steamed close inshore and opened up with her 8-inch guns while two destroyers darted even closer to shell Red shore batteries.

After an hour-long bombardment, waves of jets from the carrier Constellation swept over the plant, unloading 500- and 700-pound bombs.

It was the second consecutive day that planes had hit the Ben Thuy plant two miles southeast of Vinh and about seven miles inland from the Tonkin Gulf. The plant, originally rated at about 8,000 kilowatts, had been bombed out of operation a year ago but the North Vietnamese restored some of its capacity.

After the two-day pounding, the plant again is presumably out of operation, the U.S. Command said, but precise damage assessment was impossible because of the clouds of smoke, flame and dust raised by the bombardment and bombing.

The air strikes were among 144 missions flown against North Vietnam Monday by Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots. U.S. headquarters reported all strikes were against supply routes and facilities in the lower half of the country because clouds blanketed the area from Hanoi to the Chinese border.

Tractor Stealing Charges

Three youths and a juvenile were taken into custody Monday by Deputy Sheriff Jack Couts and Sgt. Perry Franklin of the police department for taking a tractor of the H. J. Chaney Seed House and driving it to Cedar and Griessens Roads and abandoning it to run wild against the residence of Le Roy Dillon, on Route 5, early last Saturday morning.

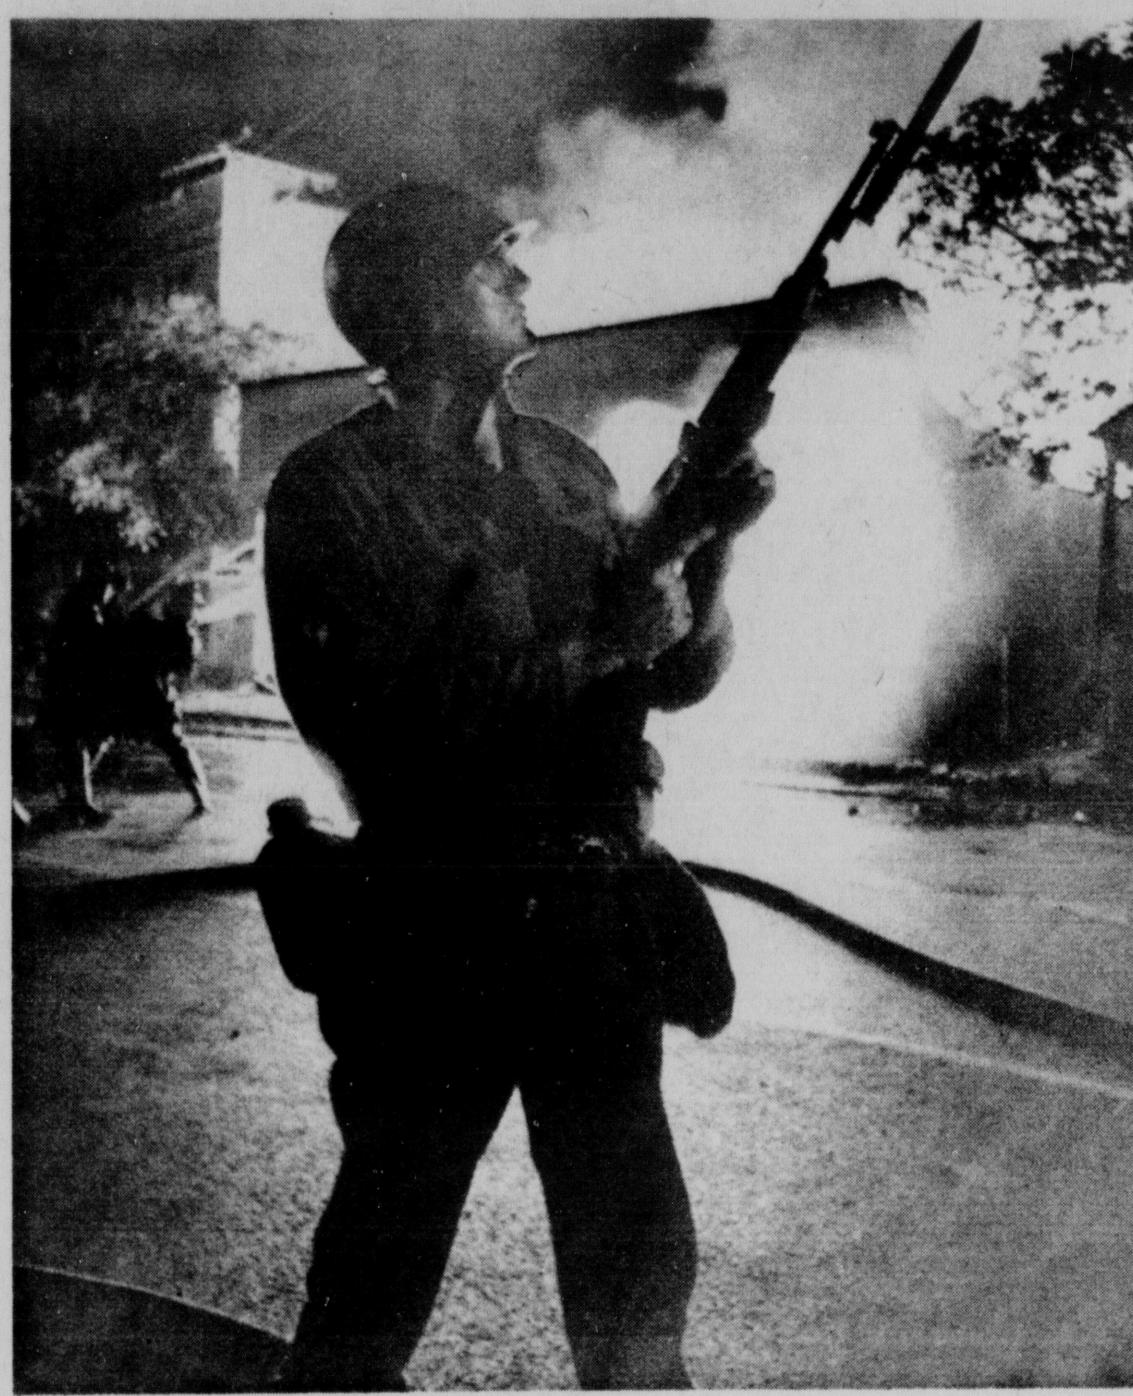

The tractor was being used on the air strip just west of the fairgrounds. In taking it, the youths ran it through five fences in the area, then headed out across Sedalia and to the area where it was found chugging and spinning its wheels in the lawn of the Dillon residence with the bucket against the house holding it back.

The machine was taken about 2:30 a.m. Saturday, and found when the Dillons awakened about 5 a.m.

Monday the three youths, Joseph A. "Skip" Sisemore, 18, Route 3; William J. Young, 17, 1601 East 13th; and Albert "Bert" Carr, 18, Route 2, Sedalia, were charged with stealing property valued over $50 in the Magistrate Court of Judge Frank T. Armstrong. Sisemore and Young were freed Tuesday on $1,000 bond each. Carr remained in jail at press time Tuesday in lieu of bond.

The fourth, a juvenile, was taken into custody and turned over to Juvenile Officer James Newland.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax reported Sgt. Franklin and Deputy Couts conferred on the case and worked together on information which led to clearing up the case.

Troopers Versed In Riot Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army paratroopers sent into turmoil Detroit have been versed in riot control tactics ranging from bayonet use to mob psychology to marching through crowds.

Depending on the type of unit he is in, an American soldier gets as much as 24 hours of individual and unit training in riot control or related activities. Civil disobedience training is included in each year's training.

Pentagon spokesmen say instruction stresses the use of adequate force—but no more—to put down a disturbance.

Elements of the 82nd and 101st Airborne divisions—4,700 strong—were sent to Michigan by President Johnson upon request from Gov. George Romney. Some of the troops were ordered into Detroit late Monday night.

"Having been with an airborne unit," one officer says, "it would be my judgment that they will be firm, be polite and say it with a smile—but they will not say it twice."

This may mean jabbing a rioter with a bayonet to move him on.

It may mean smacking him with a rifle butt if the man grabs at the weapon.

In extreme danger it may mean shooting snipers or other belligerents at the order of an officer in charge.

"We don't shoot just because something moves or because somebody runs," an officer claimed.

At the same time, he adds, "we take no guff off anybody."

Riot control training begins with learning how to wield the bayonet. The 82nd and 101st paratroops, clad in steel helmets and green fatigues, have bayonets to attach to their new, rapid-firing M16 rifles.

Couts had radioed for help and within a few minutes Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and Sgt. Albert Blankenship of the police department were on the scene. They were quickly followed by Assistant Chief Charles Knapp and Sgt. John McDonald, Sgt. Charles Stuart and Officer James Lawson. State Trooper Charles Pieper and Trooper Pete Stohr, of the Highway Patrol, who also conducted an investigation, went to the County Jail to participate in the questioning.

The two men were noted by Deputy Sheriff Jack Couts walking on 24th Street near Kentucky avenue, and after he passed them, opened the door of his car and jumped out with his gun on the two.

The report received by the police that two men, one inside the place and one outside, had been noticed, was received at 9:49 p.m. The apprehension was made at 11:17 p.m., an hour and 28 minutes later.

The two are to appear before Magistrate Frank T. Armstrong to answer to the charges.

According to Sheriff Fairfax, a car said to belong to the Penningtons was found parked behind the Hill Top Service with one tire, a Cooper brand, behind the back seat. A search warrant was issued to search the car and according to the sheriff additional tires were found in the trunk.

The mine is in Carltonville, about 35 miles southwest of Johannesburg. It is part of the important West Witwatersrand gold fields.

Pope Visiting Turkey To Help Unite Faiths

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Pope Paul VI flew to Turkey today for the first pontifical visit in more than 12 centuries and a meeting with Patriarch Athanasius of the Orthodox Church which they hoped would help reunite their faiths.

It was the first papal visit to Turkey since Pope Constantine I was triumphantly welcomed in the city of the Golden Horn in 711.

Pope Paul's two-day visit followed a major earthquake that caused widespread destruction in Anatolia southeast of Istanbul and took a known death toll of 86 and as still rising. The tremors were felt clearly in Istanbul.

Government leaders set up two meetings with the Pope, at palaces near the waterway dividing Europe and Asia, before stepping out of the picture for the religious and "private" part of the visit.

The white-bearded patriarch is the spiritual leader of 150 million Orthodox faithful in the world, but his direct authority here extends over fewer than 80,000 Turkish orthodoxy of Greek descent. The Pope has both spiritual and jurisdictional authority over 500 million Catholics.

Athenagoras in Turkish eyes stands for Greece and the other side of the Cyprus issue.

Pope Paul and Athenagoras launched a serious dialogue in the Christian unity spirit when they met in the Holy Land in 1964 during the Pope's first trip abroad. They embraced and talked twice in two days. The Pope said later that Catholic-Orthodox links should never be broken.

Since then both sides have moved closer, overcoming initial suspicion and reluctance within the Greek part of Orthodoxy.

The two church leaders set as the major topic for their Istanbul meeting the question of how to set up an expert study of the theological and church law matters that divide the Orthodox and the Catholics. They also agreed to talk about the status of Jerusalem and the holy places which have been in Israeli hands since the Israeli-Arab war in June.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I travel extensively, usually with a group. I am a freak in any crowd of travelers because I do NOT carry a camera.

I am sick to death of follow tour members who feel that just because they are taking pictures they are entitled to top priority on every view.

When I am seated next to a window on a plane, or a train or a bus, someone always taps me on the shoulder and says, "Would you mind changing seats with me? I'd like to take some pictures." Too many times, when I have been enjoying some soul-stirring sight, an anxious voice pipes up, "Please move over a little. I'd like a snapshot of this."

On my last trip I incurred the animosity of a rather nice person because it seems on two separate occasions I stepped in front of him when he was taking pictures. He behaved as if the Black Hills had been put there for the benefit of HIS photo album.

I like pictures of places where I have been, too, so I buy postcards. They are much better than anything an amateur could produce. Please print this letter and sign me — PRESIDENT OF THE SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO PEOPLE WHO TRAVEL WITHOUT CAMERAS

Dear President: Here's your letter, but don't expect it to do any good. Shutterbugs are as much a part of America as hot dogs and the U.S. Marines. And you can count on the tribe of picture takers increasing by leaps and bounds because that's what is happening to the travel industry. Lots of luck.

Dear Ann Landers: Does anybody look at your stuff before it gets into the paper or do you have the right to print anything you want to?

Our two daughters will be teen-agers soon and I have a terrible time keeping some of your columns away from them. You make me nervous when you get into personal topics like unwed mothers and V.D. Once you printed something about "an eight-handed idiot" and our 11-year-old wanted to know what you meant. I didn't know what to say.

It's very difficult to raise wholesome girls these days with sex being thrown at them left and right. If you don't stop printing trashy letters from girls who get pregnant in high school I am going to cancel my subscription to the paper. — AGAINST DIRT

Dear Against: I hope your daughters get enough information from this column to keep them out of trouble BEFORE you cancel the subscription of this paper. With a mother like you, it won't be easy.

Parents who think if they ignore sex their children will never discover it are in for a shock.

This column is a faithful reflection of life. It is real and sometimes not very pretty. But it contains information that is correct and valid and I believe it is fit fare for anyone who is old enough to read.

Confidential to: Would You Believe?: No, I wouldn't and neither would you if you had any knowledge of the subject. Many women have become pregnant while still nursing a baby. Just look at the brothers and sisters who are 11 and 12 months apart.

Confidential to Sick of Bossy Parents: So why don't you get out on your own and see how it is—while you still know everything?

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Carolyn Twenter, Lyle Aggeler

Basket arrangements of gladioli and foliage flanked the altar of St. Martin's Church, Pilot Grove, at ten o'clock, Saturday morning, June 24 for the wedding of Miss Carolyn Sue Twenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Twenter, and Mr. Lyle J. Aggeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Aggeler, Clifton City.

Celebrant for the nuptial mass and 10 o'clock double ring ceremony was the Rev. Fr. Venard Helgate.

Acolytes were Master Ted Aggeler, brother of the bridegroom, and Master Mike Aggeler, nephew of the groom.

Organist was Miss Marilyn Lang, who accompanied Miss Evelyn Lang, Miss Diane Vollrath and Norman Reuter.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Twenter chose a gown of delustered satin featuring a scoop neckline and fitted bodice, adorned with re-embroidered Alencon lace. Covered buttons closed the back bodice and sleeves at the wrist. A re-embroidered overlay of Alencon lace formed a panel on the full front skirt and the voluminous back skirt drifted into a cathedral length train. Her bouffant cathedral veil of silk illusion fell from a crown of simulated pearls and crystals. She carried a heart-shaped bouquet of nile green tinted chrysanthemums, centered with white carnations and yellow roses, embellished with yellow net and satin streamers tied in love knots holding yellow rosebuds. Her jewelry was a cultured pearl necklace and matching earrings. She also wore the wedding band worn by her mother 27 years ago.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Slema Larm, Miss Marilyn Aggeler, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Elizabeth Thomas were the bridesmaids.

Flower girl was Miss Christina White, niece of the groom. Master Frankie Twenter, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mr. David Felton served as best man, while groomsmen were Mr. William Schupp and Mr. Darrell Walje, Otterville. Performing ushering duties were Mr. Don Aggeler, brother

Future of Cattle Depends on Show

KEARNEY, Mo. (AP) — The future of Purebred Angus cattle depends, in large part, on stockmen who raise the breed for show purposes, indicated Glen Brachter, executive secretary of the American Angus Association Sunday.

More than 1,000 persons from 12 states attended an annual Angus field day sponsored by the Missouri Angus Association in Sedalia.

Brachter said stockmen must consider the total needs of the beef industry, adding that the future of Purebred cattle owners would depend on their ability to improve the position of the breed in the industry.

He reported that registration of Angus cattle increased each year over the last 10-year period.

In a livestock judging contest, in the adult division, Charles Croson, Drexel, won first place, followed by Mrs. Bonita Pipkin, Springfield, and Mrs. Paul Phillips, Granger.

In the junior division, the owner of winners was Sherry Clawson, Cameron; Donna Cowell, Queen City, and Stephen McBee, Richmond.

Role Of Computers Growing In Society

Today computers are handling much of the paper work of the county, P. J. Keller, IBM marketing and servicing representative of Kansas City, told Rotarians on Monday noon when he presented a program he called, "The Information Machine."

In 1930, one person in 12 was employed as a clerk or office worker to handle clerical and stenographic work. Now that number is one in eight. This drop has come about not because of a lighter volume of business but because more than 25,000 computers—a 20 billion dollar industry—are doing much of the paper work of business and industry.

By 1970, if the country did not have computers and data processing, the services of every woman between the ages of 18 and 65 would be required to handle the paper work in connection with the business of the nation, according to estimates, Keller stated.

Up to this point, all work that is done by the computer can be done by people with pencils, pens, adding machines and typewriters. But we are entering phase three in the computer world where computers will be fed with information from all known applications of a question and will be producing answers in a billionth of a second. A billionth of a second, stated the speaker, is the same relationship of a minute to 62 years.

Keller pointed out that as use for computers has increased, the rental cost has steadily decreased. In answer to a question, he stated that IBM is producing 85 per cent of all computers in use today.

The speaker was introduced by E. N. Healey, July program chairman.

Jake Summers, president, presented a message on record from Lou Hodges, president of Rotary International by which Hodges asked that all Rotarians make their membership mean more by getting involved in Rotary work, in community activities, by demonstrating loyalty to community and nation, and by increasing their understanding of the peoples of a world in order to pursue opportunities for international service. President Hodges was a member of the Chapel Hill, N.C., Rotary Club before his election to the International presidency.

Guests presented by Wayne Stackhouse were: Ernest Van Wagner, Fulton Rotarian and Jake Deck, Sedalia, a former member of the Sedalia club and a guest of Dr. L. S. Geiger. A. J. Harlan gave the invocation and Emory Bowland in group singing.

Mississippi Demos Striving For Victory

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The men campaigning for governor of Mississippi stand on decorated flat-bed trucks in courthouse squares from Sullivan's Hollow to Piney Ridge and call each other names "liberals" "Kennedy men" and "Washington paws."

These are Democrats, striving to win nomination in the party's Aug. 8 primary. The Republicans already have their candidate for the November election, and interest now centers entirely on the "Mississippi Democrats."

"You sure better not label me as a plain Democrat," one candidate warned a newsman. "I'm a Southern or Mississippi Democrat, and you better spell it right."

Despite 185,000 registered Negroes among the 700,000 voters the candidates are not openly soliciting Negro support. Civil rights organizations are concentrating on county and district races in selected areas.

There are seven gubernatorial candidates wearing the "Mississippi Democrat" label: ex-Gov. Ross R. Barnett, Rep. John Bell Williams, State Treasurer William Winter, Bill Waller, Jimmy Swan, Vernon Brown and C.L. McKinley.

The winner will face Rubel Philips, a Jackson attorney who won 38 per cent of the vote in 1963 as Republican candidate against Democrat Paul B. Johnson Jr., ineligible by law to succeed himself.

Ross Barnett was governor from 1960 to 1964 and made national news in 1962 when James H. Meredith, a Negro, was enrolled in the University of Mississippi.

Opponents are using the incident against Barnett, 69. John Dell Williams calls Barnett the "secret-deal candidate," claiming he agreed with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to allow Meredith to enter school if Kennedy would make a show of force from federal officers.

Barnett has denied the charge, but Kennedy on a recent trip to the state said such a deal was made.

Barnett is campaigning on a platform of states rights, supported by ex-Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama for president, and increased state welfare benefits for the aged and disabled. He has promised a $75-a-month old age pension, now $50 a month.

Williams says he stands for states rights and law and order and never fails to remind listeners that it was he who lost his party seniority in the House for supporting Republican Barry Goldwater against President Johnson in the 1964 election.

Winter, 44, a lawyer from Grenada, served in the Legislature and was state tax collector before winning election as treasurer.

Williams and Barnett both charge that Winter is a liberal. Winter says he is a "responsible conservative" and accused the other candidates of "spouting claptrap."

Business and industrial leaders have rallied behind Winter with large sums of money, and most political observers think he's the leading candidate.

Jimmy Swan, a Hattiesburg radio executive, has the state's ultraconservative vote. Robed Ku Klux Klansmen have, on occasion, appeared at highway intersections handing out his campaign literature.

Love New Role In Science

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A few weeks ago I read in a magazine about a problem posed by a college professor to a group of students. He asked them to figure out how to disintegrate a planet on an earth course before it crashed into us.

At the end of the several weeks of research, the students came up with an answer that the professor deemed 90 per cent sure of working.

I wouldn't think of explaining the answer. Despite starting work for a third season of "Lost in Space," I really don't know much more about space and its problems than I did when I was farmbound in the "Lassie" series for six years.

I've been a fan of science fiction through the years. I loved Jules Verne's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." I was fascinated by Ray Bradbury's "The Martian Chronicles." I don't believe in flying saucers but I don't discount them either. But I'm as much in the dark about space as the next average person.

However, I am expected to be an expert on the subject. When Dick Chamberlain was "Dr. Kildare" and Vince Edwards was "Ben Casey" they received mail constantly asking for advice on how to cure certain diseases. When Raymond Burr was the winningest attorney on the air as "Perry Mason," people wrote to him about their legal problems. Naturally, they never gave the advice that was sought.

They, as I, were merely playing roles. But it is also true that one picks up odd pieces of information about one's simulated profession—and mine now is that of the first spacemother. It is not enough to permit one to hold forth authoritatively on the subject.

Jumping from the farm to the myriad of planets has been exhilarating.

In "Lassie" I was allowed to wear only gingham gowns and aprons and no one knew I had a body under those aprons. But in "Lost in Space" I wear form-fitting silver lame jumpsuits while I float around the wild blue yonder. Those women of the future do know how to dress.

World News

ADEN (AP) — A general strike paralyzed all commercial life in Aden today. No one moved about except British soldiers on security duties.

British military authorities once again put the sweltering, and troubled colony under State Red, their highest emergency classification.

The Aden Trades Union Congress ordered the 24-hour strike as a protest against alleged "inhuman behavior" by British troops. The strike's total effectiveness showed that the rival nationalist movements—the NLF—National Liberation Front; and FLOSY—Front for the Liberation of South Yemen—were cooperating for a change.

Another Arab civilian was killed in the Crater district Sunday night for failing to halt when ordered by British troops. This brought the number of Arabs killed there Friday to four.

LONDON (AP) — The Beatles and two members of Parliament were among 65 leading Britons who petitioned the government today to make marijuana legal.

In a full-page ad in the Times of London, the 65 said they had formed a group called SOMA to examine without prejudice all aspects of "heightened mental awareness, with special reference to the effects of pleasure-giving drugs."

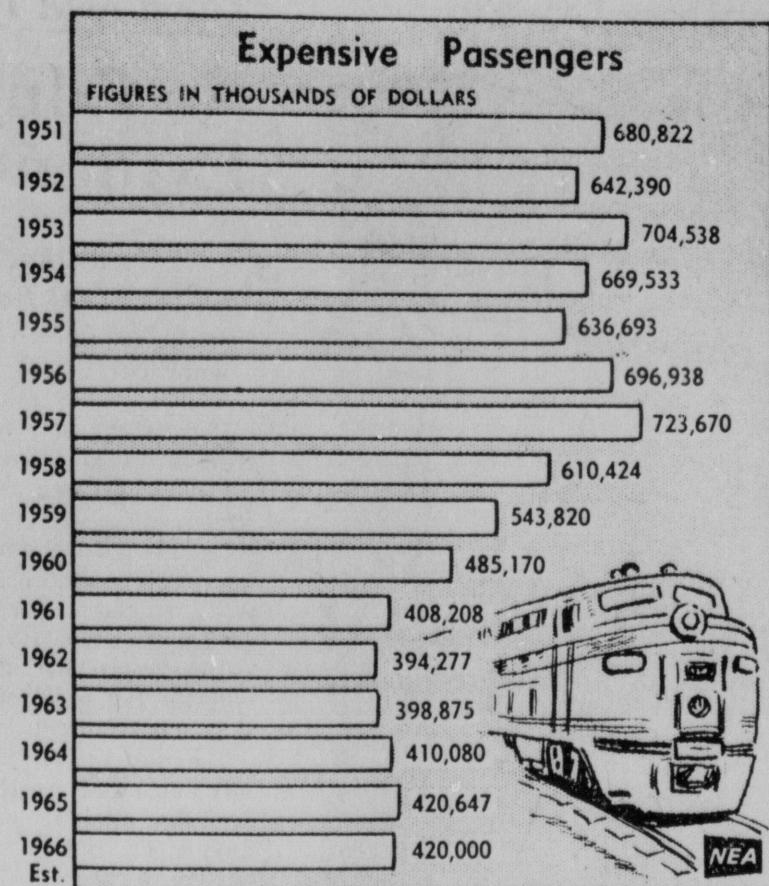

The ad urged Home Secretary Roy Jenkins to encourage research into the use of marijuana, allow it to be smoked in private and take it off the dangerous drugs list.

Elm Tree Cause Of Mild Uproar

The sounds of something cracking, snapping and popping for more than 10 minutes, followed by a terrific crash, disturbed neighbors in the 1100 block on West Seventh street about 1:10 a.m. Monday. It was a large limb on an elm tree which had died recently in the yard of James Giokaris, 1123 West Seventh street.

Giokaris, Circuit Court reporter, said he was working in his study when he heard the popping and creaking sounds and then a crash. Looking out a window, he saw the large limb lying across Seventh street.

Porch lights over the neighborhood began flicking on and neighbors peered down at the commotion created by the crash and arrival of a police car and later members of the Street and Alley Department, who quickly cleared the street.

Not since World War II years has passenger service on American railways shown a profit and in the last decade and a half averaged better than a half-billion dollars annually, according to statistics of the Association of American Railroads. In recent years, the deficit has declined along with service and number of passengers.

"Put Up or Shut Up"

"Thank you for helping stir up citizens of Sedalia about the lagoon in Liberty Park. In time it will be something all of us will be proud of."

So writes a reader.

In TIME is right!

It seems like yesterday when we expostulated with the mayor and city council about a proposal to eliminate the park lagoon. But it was back in November 1966 when we urged the city fathers to "put their craniums to work and find a solution to preserve rather than destroy this beauty spot."

A recent photograph in the Democrat-Capital showed in stark reality the bridge over what appeared to be a lagoon stricken by drought. The dried bed is a result of drainage preliminary to repairing the banks and putting the little lake back in business for the edification of the people.

That will only eventuate if interested persons contribute to a fund to get the work done. This appears to be the remedy as a result of the cranium-activation we suggested last year. The city doesn't have enough money to finish the park project. So a drive for funds is underway to raise enough cash from Sedalia old timers and newcomers to repair the bed and banks.

In this connection L. R. Black,

Superintendent of Parks, passes along comments from some new residents:

"It is wonderful to hear that an attempt is being made to restore the lagoon. We are new residents of Sedalia and have enjoyed Liberty Park for its picnic area, band concerts and lovely garden displays. It will be a splendid addition to have the now sordid-looking lagoon renovated into a lovely, clear pool that children and adults can enjoy and reflect on the charming atmosphere a clean lagoon would make. We hope our small contribution will hasten and help your renewal program."

The Park Board is grateful for these pleasant remarks, and rightfully reminds all citizens that their help is needed to complete the program. This is especially suggestive to those of us who were most vehement against filling in the lagoon when that subject was broached last November.

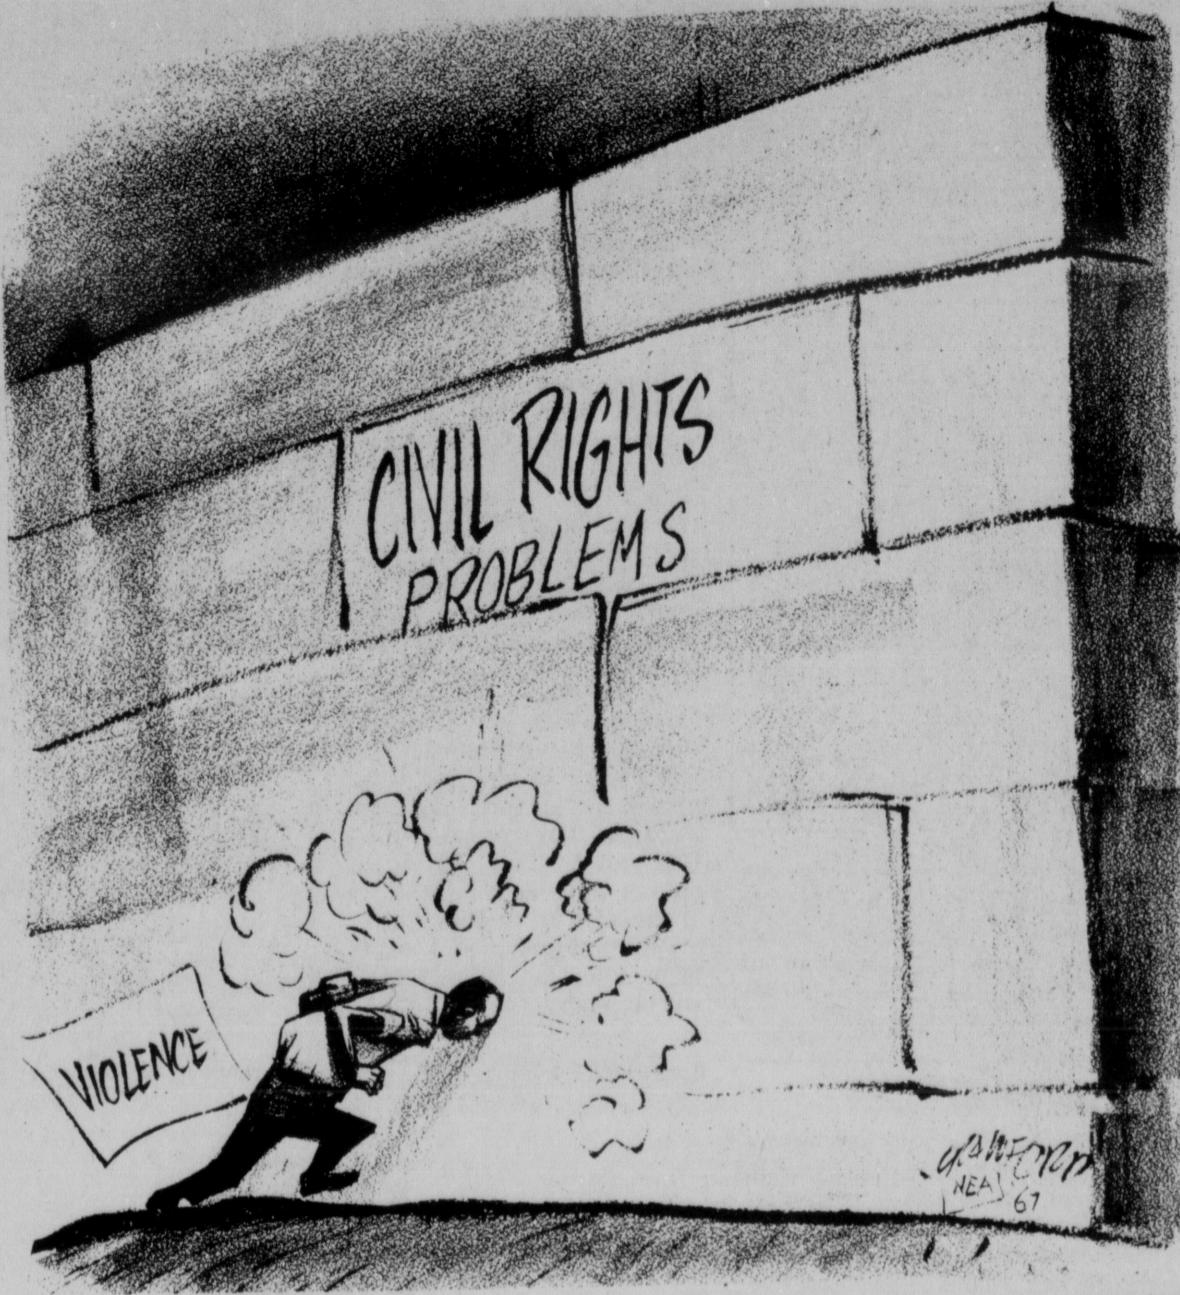

So, come on, you lagoon lovers! Fork over a donation and send it to the Liberty Park Lagoon Fund, Post Office Box 133, Sedalia, Missouri.

Let's get more action on this park project than we did about restoring the Covered Bridge which was burned over a year ago.

What's that old cliche: "Put your money where your mouth is?"

THE WELL CHILD®

Rheumatoid Arthritis Varies in Each Child

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Although rheumatoid arthritis is generally regarded as a disease of adults, it may occur at any age. In children it may be seen as early as 4 and is sometimes called Still's disease. The cause is unknown. The diagnosis is made difficult by the fact that, if a very young child has the disease, he doesn't have the command of language to describe his symptoms accurately.

The disease usually starts with a period of vague irritability, low-grade fever and failure to gain weight before any joint involvement is noticed.

The joints first affected are those of the fingers and toes on both sides of the body. As the disease progresses, the wrists and ankles, then elbows and knees, then shoulders and hips become involved. Along with the pain and stiffness there is usually some swelling of the joints. Periods of remission are often followed by a recurrence. Some children appear to outgrow the disease but others are left with permanent deformity.

Every child is different and every case of rheumatoid arthritis in a child differs in some ways from that of other children. For that reason there is no set pattern of treatment but there are certain principles your doctor will follow. Aspirin is still widely used and a child with this disease has a greater tolerance for this potentially dangerous drug than has a normal child. Some antimalarial drugs have also been found to be very effective.

The judicious use of hydrocortisone is helpful but care must be taken to avoid its disastrous side effects. For some young victims a gold salt is the best treatment but for others it is valueless.

Because a proper balance between rest and exercise is important the best results are obtained when the treatment is supervised by a team consisting of a pediatrician, an orthopedic surgeon, a physical therapist and a specialist in rehabilitation. There is no easy cure for this disease but a spirit of optimism on the part of the doctors, the parents and the victims will go far toward minimizing the effects of the disease.

WIN AT BRIDGE

The Argument Goes on and on

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South took his ace of hearts and proceeded to play ace and a small trump. West won with his queen and remarked, "When both sides play trumps, one is wrong but I am going to play another trump anyway."

He cashed the king of trumps and led the ten of hearts. Dummy's queen lost to East's king and South had to ruff with his last trump. Then South entered dummy with the ace of diamonds and tried the club finesse. West took his king and set the hand with heart tricks.

"I never work a finesse, moaned South.

"You didn't this time," said West, "but you cracked the hand anyway. You should have submarine the trumps by leading low from your ace. You would ruff the second heart, go to dummy, try and lose the club finesse and still make the hand because I would have had no chance to pull your last little trump."

"When I want my partner educated, I'll teach him," said

Democrat Pickups

Early one evening a woman who has a heart condition and hasn't been very well was struggling to break the hollyhock stalks in her yard that had finished blooming and looked ragged. She was stepping on them and pulling with all her strength. Suddenly she heard the voice of a young man say: "Let me do that for you."

She looked up and there beside her stood a boy, perhaps still a teenager.

"Where did you come from?" she asked.

"I was passing by," replied the youth, "saw what you were trying to do and came over. My mother always taught me," he continued, "whenever I saw an older person trying to do something and having a hard time, to do it for them."

With that the youth easily broke up the hollyhock stalks and put them in a sack. Then he said: "If you will get me another sack I will finish the job," and he did. After putting them in the garbage can he went his way, leaving the woman with a wonderful feeling about young people. —H. L.

"Want to bet?" said West. "Sure do," replied North. "If South leads a low spade at trick two it is up to West to go up with the queen or king and lead either the nine or eight of diamonds. This will give him time to establish a diamond trick before South has the opportunity to discard two of dummy's diamonds on his long clubs."

No Conspiracy Evidence Found

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — How do Negro riots start?

Republican party leaders suggest violence like that in Detroit may result from a conspiracy organized, planned and carried out on a national scale.

But the national government at this moment has no evidence of such a conspiracy, and it has had weeks to check. Nevertheless, Republicans called for a congressional investigation.

They accused President Johnson of failing to deal with the riot problem. But Monday night he sent U.S. troops into Detroit.

The riots in one city after another have pretty much followed a pattern. A Negro mob forms to denounce a certain police action. Some times the mob melts. But in other cases it suddenly goes berserk. It becomes, like any violent mob, mindless and plunges into destruction.

But what triggers the mob? Some individual or group of individuals, perhaps shouting something like, "Let's tear the place down." As one government official explained: "There's always a loudmouth to start something."

But what kind of individual would do the triggering? Without question it would be a criminal, either a person with a criminal record or one who is potentially criminal and suddenly found his chance to perform.

Anyone who has had enough dealings with criminals to understand the criminal mind knows a criminal's concern is not a choice between right and wrong but how to get away with what he wants to do.

Nothing provides as much safety as a mob for a man who wants to kill, loot or burn. In the midst of mob action he is practically anonymous, which makes it tough for the police to pin anything on him directly.

But are all the members of a mob criminals? Definitely, those who commit criminal acts. Earlier this year the President's crime commission in its study of riots said:

"They are a sort of moral license to the compulsively or habitually criminal members of the ghetto community to engage in their criminal activities and to ordinarily law-abiding citizens to gratify such submerged tendencies toward violence and theft as they may have."

New Jersey's Gov. Richard J. Hughes called the Newark riots a "criminal insurrection." And Monday night Detroit's Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh said the wreckage of his city was "an explosion of the completely lawless element."

In a special report to the nation Monday night, Johnson also called the conduct criminal.

And if anyone doubts this all he has to do is remember that some of these riots, which may have been triggered by the action of some individual policeman, went on night after night when the mobs found the police couldn't stop them.

The President's commission acknowledged that riots are complicated and that one way of explaining them is ghetto conditions. It recommended action to eliminate those conditions.

The commission listed racial discrimination, commercial exploitation, economic deprivation, and police misconduct as examples of what participants in earlier riots said they were protesting against.

Yet in the South, where Negroes were kept in an inferior condition longest, there have been no big riots this year. Perhaps those willing to riot there believed the police retaliation in the South would be swift and rigid.

It hardly seems an accident the rioting has been limited to Northern cities where there is division among the whites on police restraint and the concern for Negroes is the greatest. In other words, the North was a softer touch than the South.

At the same time, despite the rioters' expressed hostility toward "Whitemen," these Northern riots have not been racial in the sense that white neighborhoods were the first to be invaded and demolished, if at all.

In Newark, for example, the destruction was aimed mainly at the Negro areas, a condition which supports the belief the riots were criminally inspired.

And, further, in Detroit white thieves joined Negro looters without any reports that the Negroes turned on them. They were criminals together.

Letter to Editor

PAULINE HOFSTETTER (Versailles, Mo.)—Your newspaper in its new form is excellent. I like the changes very much. Thank you for the improvements you have made and for consideration of the addition of Billy Graham's column and Peanuts cartoon.

Negative Approach

Committee reports, news stories, or even letters can be full of errors in grammar, punctuation and structure. William Irvine, Assistant Staff Director of the House Civil Service Committee, recently sent out the following list of rules to follow in writing reports:

"Don't use no double negative."

Make each pronoun agree with their antecedent.

Join clauses good, like a conjunction should. About them sentence fragments.

When dangling, watch your participles.

Verbs has to agree with their subjects.

Just between you and I, case is important too.

Don't write run-on sentences they are hard to read.

Don't use commas, which are not necessary.

Try to never split infinitives.

It's important to use your apostrophe's correctly.

Proofread your writing to see if you any words out.

Correct spelling is essential.

To accentuate the positive by accentuating the negatives might be effective in Mr. Irvine's department, but the positive approach "do" is usually better than the negative "don't." These rules probably get a good laugh from some report writers, but those who take the rules seriously probably make fewer mistakes.

Exhibition Tilt To KC's Chiefs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Little Noland Smith raced 86 yards with a punt return and Frank Pitts grabbed the game-winning touchdown pass from Sandy Stephens as the Kansas City Chiefs downed the Denver Broncos, 21-14, in a rookie-dominated American Football League exhibition game Monday night.

Smith, only 5-foot-8 and 163 pounds, ignited the scoring the first time he touched the ball. The former Tennessee State Star grabbed a Denver punt on his own 14, dropped back to the five to set up his blockers, then sped down the sidelines for the Chiefs' first TD.

"He may be the most exciting runner in pro football," Chiefs coach Hank Stram said after the game. "You have to see him to appreciate how good he is. He is an artist."

After halfback Gene Thomas blasted over from the four to give the Chiefs a 14-0 lead before a crowd of 23,546, Denver capitalized on two breaks to pull even.

Linebacker Carl Cunningham picked off a Stephens toss and returned it 23 yards to the Chiefs' 10 in the third quarter. Quarterback Scotty Glacken then whipped a touchdown pass to Eric Crabtree.

On the ensuing kickoff, Kansas City fumbled and the Broncos' Darrell Lester recovered on the seven. Fran Lynch, the game's top rusher with 32 yards in seven carries, bullied his way for six and then Glacken dived over the top for the six pointer.

In the final period, Stephens connected on a 34-yard pass to Aaron Brown, former defensive player getting a trial at full-back, then followed with the winning aerial to Pitts.

Stephens, star at the University of Minnesota, believed to be the first Negro to start at the position in the U. S. major leagues, completed 7 of 14 for 106 yards and one touchdown. He was never caught for a loss while attempting to pass.

Denver dominated the running game, outgaining the Chiefs 104 to 28. The Broncos ran 48 offensive plays to 27 for Kansas City.

Both teams' quarterbacks were wired for sound and a local radio station broadcast the advance information from the huddles. The clock was permitted to run after all plays as both clubs were short of players due to injuries.

Jan Stenerud, the Chiefs Norwegan soccer style kicker, booted three out of three placements and handled the kickoffs. Otherwise he had no opportunity to demonstrate his field goal accuracy which won rave notices at Montana State where he posted 59 and 52-yard field goals and scored an NCAA record 82 points by kicking last season.

Pride Is Foe of Parents In Proper Child-Rearing

BY MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

"Should we force our 22-months-old boy to play with other children? He is so dependent on us he embarrasses me. Where other children of his age are outgoing and venturesome Morgan has to cling to our hand when we go out. It worries us."

"As teachers we both have professional experience with children. Yet now we feel hopelessly inadequate. . . ."

Answer:—Just like Morgan when he clings to your hand. Are you secretly afraid that you've damaged him emotionally? If so, face the fear. Get yourself the reassurance of a child psychiatrist.

In the meantime, please ponder the idea that parents with "professional" experience of other people's children can give themselves a very rough time with their own. Not only must they struggle with the usual parental craving for credit-reflecting behavior but also feel obliged to prove that their child-raising competence is superior to everyone else's.

This is the pride that is so "embarrassed" when this small boy's uncertainty and shyness challenges your image of what you think you ought to have made of him.

This pride then is the enemy. If you can stop being so scared of what you actually are—uncertain, inadequate, not knowing everything but able to wait to discover more—Morgan's uncertainty and shyness will cease to be a humiliation in which you are resentfully involved.

He'll become your small companion in uncertainty. In his reach for your supporting hands, you will see not shameful dependence but the same honest confession of weakness that inspired your letter to me.

His shyness toward other children will no longer appear strange and unwholesome because in it you've recognized your own fear of disappointing people. In place of the mysteriously difficult child who threatens your pride in superior, all-knowing child-raising competence, there'll be a human like yourself.

Because you have learned how to give yourself time to develop instead of wanting all your development accomplished right now, you'll be able to give this baby boy time to develop, too.

Pride is evil because it won't ever allow us Process. It always insists we must be at the top of the mountain, by-passing the step-by-step Process that takes us there. It's parents' great enemy.

Duplicate Lunch Idea May Bring Improvement

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—If you do much packing of lunches, it is a good idea to occasionally make an exact duplicate lunch for yourself. Put it in the cupboard (NOT the refrigerator) until the time when your children or husband would be eating theirs. You just might get some ideas for improvement. I was rather surprised and not especially pleasantly. I love the column! Pleasantly!—ROSE

DEAR POLLY—I used to be aggravated when I washed and ironed cafe or other straight hanging curtains. They flared out at the bottom when hung back up. The last time they were washed I made a small ring, about the size of my finger, out of plastic gummed tape with the sticky side out. I stuck the curtain to the window sill the way I wanted it to hang, after a few days, when I removed the tape, the curtains were hanging straight.—MRS. C. D.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My husband and I spend our vacations and many weekends camping. I know many people keep camping kits packed at all times and I would like to know what they keep in them so we might benefit from the experience of other campers.—BEVERLY

DEAR POLLY—When I was in the Women's Marine Corps we were told to put mops in cotton laundry bags to wash them. An old pillow slip, pinned or tied across the open end, should work just as well.—MRS. G. L. M.

DEAR POLLY—and CONSTANT READER—To wash a soiled dust mop, I put it in the stationary tub while I wash a load of white clothes in the washer. When the wash water drains out (it is still hot) I swish the mop around in the tub. When the rinse water drains out I repeat the same swishing. Squeeze the water out, hang the mop outside to dry and it will be fresh and clean.—MRS. J. P.

DEAR POLLY—Last month my husband was going on a trip and there was no room to hang his trousers. I took the cardboard roll out of my aluminum foil and placed it in the fold of his trousers and then laid them flat in the suitcase. When he was ready to wear the pants there was no crease from folding.—DORTHA

DEAR POLLY—Those dresses with very full gathered skirts no longer need to hang in the closet because they are not fashionable. The material is often in good shape. I have ripped the waists from the skirts of such dresses, washed and ironed the material and always have enough to make something for my little girls or myself so they are put back into use.—MRS. L. E. J.

DEAR POLLY—Tell the gals to save the selvages they cut off of material when sewing. It is extremely strong and good for tying packages, tomato plants and so on.—MRS. D. S.

Denies Big Three Existence

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Don January, the new PGA champion, says he doesn't think there's any "Big Three" in golf.

After his two-stroke victory in the PGA title playoff with Don Massengale Monday, January was asked if he felt Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player had a stranglehold on the game.

"There's no such thing as the Big Three," January responded. "There are dozens of players who are capable of winning any of our Big Three championships—the Open, PGA and Masters."

The lean Texan, who lost to Jerry Barber in the PGA's only other playoff in 1961, said he felt he "had played good enough many times to win the Open, Masters or PGA."

The 37-year-old Dallas golfer-insurance businessman, said the loss to Barber taught him a lesson and contributed to his victory over the 7,436-yard par 72 Columbine Course where he shot 69 to Massengale's 71.

"I thought I could play Jerry head-to-head, but I lost," January said. "So when I started the playoff here I set my target on a sub-par score."

He pegged the 10th hole as the turning point. After turning the front nine in par 36, even with Massengale, January sank a 30-foot birdie putt from the fringe.

January said he was intending to lay the putt up to the cup "and when it rolled in, I was as surprised as anyone. That seemed to release me."

Massengale said his own 25-foot putt on the 10th "just lipped the cup and from then on it seemed like January did everything just a little better than I did."

January, who failed to qualify for Ryder Cup team this year, went to the bank today with $25,000 first prize to soothe any hurt feelings. Massengale collected $15,000.

Relief Pitcher Sought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Reliever Jack Lamabe is still looking like the Mets, and the St. Louis Cardinals are still looking for a relief pitcher.

The Cards picked up Lamabe from the Mets on waivers a week ago. Since then he's made four appearances, lost two games and walked home the winning run Monday night, although he was not charged with that defeat.

St. Louis fell to a tie for the National League lead with Chicago as the Cubs whipped the Cardinals, 3-1.

In the American League, Kansas City had the day off. The A's will meet Washington in a doubleheader today in the nation's capital. Jim Hunter and Chuck Dobson will be on the mound for the A's, facing the Senators' Frank Bertaina and Barry Moore.

The day Lamabe joined the Cardinals he saw action against his old teammates. But the much-traveled right-hander gave up five runs, four of them earned, on seven hits in two innings and brought his 1967 record to 0-4.

Two days later Lamabe faced two men and walked one. He was lifted for reliever Joe Hoerner, but was charged with the loss, his fifth of the season.

Monday night Lamabe came on with the score tied and the bases loaded. He proceeded to walk Don Kessinger to force in the winning run as the Cubs won their ninth victory in their last 11 games.

One Survivor In First Round

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Five players from Kansas and Missouri went into the first rounds of the Western Open Junior and Boys' Tennis Championships here Monday, and only one survived to compete in the third round Tuesday.

Bob McKinley, of St. Ann, Mo., seeded fifth, won both his matches in the 18-and-under junior division. McKinley, a member of the junior Davis Cup team, defeated David Cross, of Rockport, Mass., 6-3, 6-1 and John Hynes of Seattle, 6-2, 6-3.

Richard Reilly, of Kansas City, went out in the second round of the same division to the second-seeded Mike Estep of Dallas, Texas.

Randy Bergdall, of Winfield, Kan., was also knocked out of the junior division. He succumbed in the first round to Erik Van Dillen, of San Mateo, Calif., the fourth seed, 6-0, 6-0.

In the boys' division, Rodney Kubat, of Arkansas City, Kan., lost in the second round, 6-3, 6-1, to Roscoe Tanner, of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Bill McGowan, of Kansas City, was beaten by Brian Gottfreid, Cape Coral, Fla., 6-1, 6-4, in the first round of the boys' division.

Angel Is on a 'Joy' Ride

By ROGER DOUGHTY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — At 25, Angel Cordero isn't worried about his retirement fund. "Right now," he says, "I've got some money and I want to have some fun. You never know how long you're going to live."

Especially true when you make that living piloting a thousand pounds of horseflesh through tons of thoroughbred interference nine times a day at New York's Aqueduct race track. That's how Cordero puts bread on the table and in the bank and he's been doing so well of late that he hardly knows where to start spending it all.

Cordero, born in Puerto Rico, has been the hottest young rider in New York this year, so hot that he's been battling Braulio Baeza for the top spot in the jockey standings at Aqueduct since opening day. Twice during the month of June he booted home five winners in one day and his spirited riding has made him the darling of the railbirds.

"It's a nice feeling," he says, "but things weren't always this way." Cordero's first attempt to make it big in New York, in 1962, was a dismal failure. "I was here three months," he recalls, "and I didn't do so good, so I went back to Puerto Rico."

In 1965, Angel, still far from confident that he could make it with the big little men of the profession, came back to New York for another try.

"I still didn't do so good," he remembers, "but my friend, Eddie Belmonte (another jockey), wouldn't let me go home. Every time I packed my suitcase, Eddie would unpack it. Finally I gave up and decided to stay."

Cordero's education at Aqueduct didn't come easy and mounts were hard to come by at first, but Angel was patient. "I just wanted to ride," he says, "and even if I could get only one mount a day, I was happy. Pretty soon I won a few."

Now, after a couple of seasons at the Big A's school of hard knocks, Cordero is being heralded as an overnight sensation.

Vince DeGregory, Cordero's agent since last year, knew his client was going to be No. 1 some day. He tried harder right from the start.

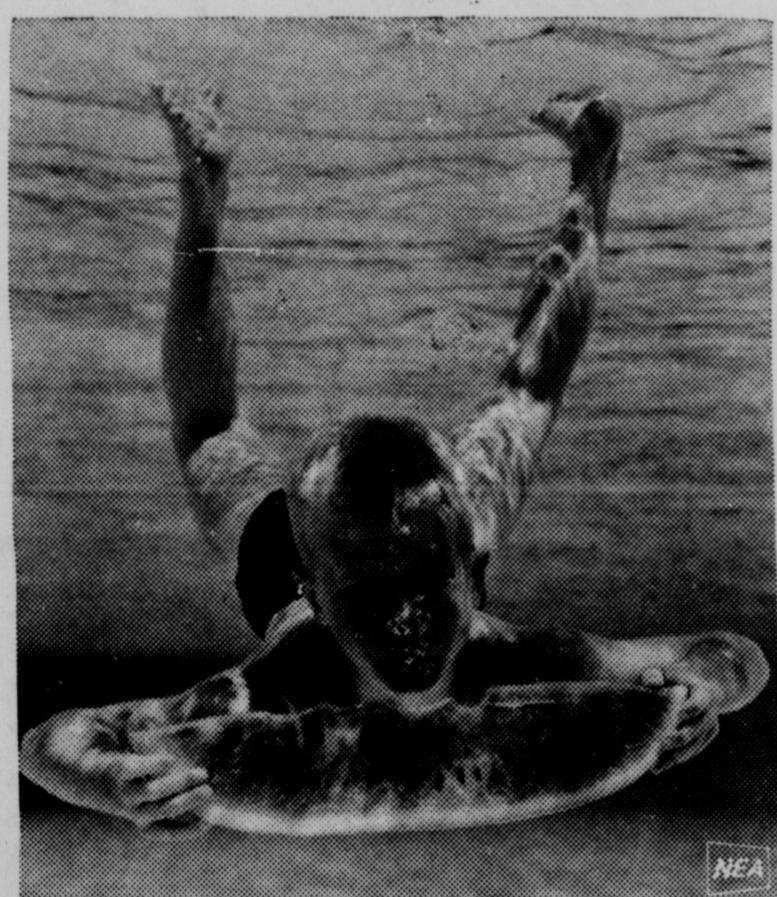

"Actually," recalls DeGregory, "he tried too hard. He was too aggressive. Now that he knows he can ride in almost every race, every day, he's more relaxed and confident. And it's paying off."

It's also paying off for DeGregory, who was given a trip to France when Cordero decided he wanted to fly over, with his wife and agent in tow to watch his friend Baeza ride Assagai in the Grand Prix de Saint Cloud. The trip cost

Angel about $1,500, but as he says, "It's no fun to make money if you can't spend it to enjoy yourself."

FATHER'S HELPERS show Angel Cordero how it's done. Angel, one of the top jockeys of the season, gives his children a chance to ride one of the ponies at the Aqueduct stables. Then it's time for a snack before an afternoon's work.

Cordero's ambitions, besides making money and having fun, are manifold. He lists them as follows:

"This year," he says, "I'd be very happy if I could be the leading rider in New York. A lot of people from Puerto Rico told me that New York is a very hard place for Puerto Ricans to make good, so I would like to show them that it can be done."

"Next year," continues Cordero, "I would like to win the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont. But, if I can't win them all, I'll be happy to win a couple of them. And I would like to win all the big stakes races. Maybe I won't win all of them, either, but I bet I win some."

No takers on that bet.

As one brewery puts it, "New York is a tough town—either you have it or you don't."

After five years of trying, Angel Cordero has shown that he has it. And he even knows how to enjoy it.

Soccer Wants You, Little Man

NEW YORK — (NEA) — For years now, the little men have been taboo in basketball. Now there's a place for them—in the National Professional Soccer League. The average player in the NPSL weighs 164 pounds and stands 5'9 1/2 tall.

Compare that to the professional football leagues where the average player is 222.6 pounds and 6'2.

In basketball, the best backcourt men today range between 6'4 and 6'6.

"This is the best example I have seen of what soccer has to offer high school and college players who would not have a chance in other sports," said Ken Macker, commissioner of the NPSL.

The lightest team in the NPSL is the New York Generals (156.8). The New York Giants, meanwhile, average 223.8 pounds, a difference of 67 pounds.

The heaviest team in the soccer league is Pittsburgh (171.5). By comparison, the Pittsburgh Steelers of the NFL average 222.5 pounds.

And what does all this mean?

"We're just trying to develop native players," Macker said. "And we want to show them the field is wide open."

"Opportunities for little men are unlimited."

Keep that in mind if you're one of those frustrated basketball backcourt men.

WINNIPEG (AP) — A quartet of marksmen from the armed forces got the United States off to a roaring start in the fifth Pan-American Games.

Today, the young swimmers and divers, the pride and joy of the Yankee squad, take over the spotlight and the pursuit of an expected golden harvest of medals.

Hershel (Andy) Anderson, a 29-year-old staff sergeant from Columbus, Ga., earned the honor of winning the first gold medal of the games Monday when he captured the free pistol shooting with a score of 548 out of 600.

Then he collected another gold souvenir as a member of the record-breaking foursome that bagged the team crown with 2,171 points, shattering the Pan-American record by one point.

His partners in victory were Arnold Vitarbo, a Bronx, N.Y., native now an Air Force sergeant at San Antonio, Tex., 554; M-Sgt. William Blankenship, Columbus, Ga., 537, and Maj. Franklin Green, of the Air Force at San Antonio, Tex., 532.

While the shooters confined themselves to practice today, the divers and swimmers plunged into action. They may earn the Yanks 30 of the 33 gold medals in the aquatic sports.

The program in the huge, $2.7 million Pan-American pool, showpiece structure of the Winnipeg sports spectacle, include the first three dives in the women's 3-meter springboard competition, and qualifying heats in the women's 200-meter freestyle and men's 100-meter freestyle.

The United States got off to a good start in men's gymnastics and tennis, too, Monday, but it wasn't all wine and roses.

The tournament is on a double round-robin basis.

Gateway Arch Train Is Opened

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The cable-drawn transporter in the north leg of the gateway arch made 50 trips to the top Monday as the nation's newest and tallest national monument was opened to the public.

Officials said 2,000 persons paid to see what the view was like from the top of the 630-foot stainless steel arch.

The first person to buy a ticket was a Chicago musician, Al Carter, who came to St. Louis Sunday and walked around the downtown area until ribbon-cutting ceremonies were concluded and rides started at noon Monday.

The ceremonies were attended by civic and government leaders including Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and St. Louis Mayor A.J. Cervantes.

The capsule train cars performed perfectly, but two automatic ticket dispensers broke down and tickets were distributed by hand.
